

Kate Thomson, BSN, RN, OCN®, and Barb Henry, MSN, APRN-BC

Digital Object Identifier:10.1188/12.CJON.471-480

Major depressive disorder affects about 14.8 million adults in the United States and is the leading cause of disability in the country (World Health Organization, 2008). According to the American Psychiatric Association ([APA], 2000), people with major depressive illness experience at least five or more of the